Presentation

This course aims to present, debate and deepen the main dilemmas surrounding today's information society, particularly the problems that information and digital spaces raise. The digital society confronts us with doubts and incapacities. How can we understand the news, information in general, the power of algorithms and the best methods for navigating these challenging digital seas? During this course, through concrete examples and joint reflections, the aim is to contribute to strengthening knowledge, training and ways of better dealing with digital spaces and information.
